

the charity for your community

Replacing old electrical appliances

As from 1 July, retailers and distributors of electrical appliances will have to provide facilities for their customers to return old electrical equipment free of charge when they buy a replacement item. Distributors or retailers can either join the Distributor Takeback Scheme, which supports mainly local authority-run collection points, or they can allow customers to bring goods back to the store. The regulations will be enforced by the Vehicle Certification Agency.